could result in your insurance cover being cancelled and any claim for benefits could be denied, so it is vital you answer all questions fully and accurately.

Although we ask you specific questions via a personal statement, you should also tell us about any other information that will impact on the insurer's decision to offer you insurance cover, regardless of whether you deem it to be material or important. This includes current medical issues that require investigation, medication or treatment, even if a diagnosis has not been made.

This obligation applies to all insurance cover relating to this application, including amounts transferred from another fund or insurance arrangement. This means you could be placed in a position where you have no insurance cover if we later find you have not answered all questions fully and accurately.

Your duty of disclosure continues until you receive written confirmation your application has been accepted. You must contact the insurer if there is any change in your health or circumstances that is relevant to the insurer's decision on your application.

I understand that the Duty of disclosure continues after I have completed this statement until I am notified of acceptance in writing by the Trustee.

Duty of disclosure

HESTA has taken out a contract of insurance with an insurer to provide the insurance benefits in the Fund. On becoming an insured member, you are bound by the terms and conditions of this contract of insurance. When you apply for insurance cover and before that cover is accepted by the insurer, you have a duty to tell the insurer anything that you know, or could reasonably be expected to know, that may affect the insurer's decision to provide the insurance and on what terms.

You have this duty of disclosure until the insurance is provided. You have the same duty before you extend, vary or reinstate the contract.

You do not need to tell the insurer anything that:

- reduces the risk of the insurance, or
- is common knowledge, or
- the insurer knows or should know as an insurer, or
- the insurer waives the duty to tell the insurer about.

If you do not tell us something

If you do not tell the insurer anything that you know, or could reasonably be expected to know, that affects the insurer's decision to provide the insurance, then the insurer can exercise a number of remedies under the contract.

This means that it can do any one of the following things:

- a) the insurer can treat your insurance cover as never having commenced. The insurer can do this if it becomes aware of something which you should have told them before entering into the contract and that fact would have meant the insurer would not have agreed to provide insurance cover to you on any terms e.g. they would not have given you insurance even if you agreed to pay an extra premium; or
- b) the insurer can reduce the amount of insurance cover provided to you; or
- c) the insurer may choose to continue to provide you with insurance cover but change the basis upon which it provides that insurance to you (vary the contract). If the insurer chooses to do this, then it will do so by putting the insurer back in the same position it would have been in had you told the insurer everything you should have.

NOTE: The insurer can only exercise options a) and b) within three years of providing you with insurance cover. The insurer cannot exercise option c) if you are only insured for Death Cover.

If the insurer chooses to do any one of a), b) or c) then the insurer may consider whether different types of cover can constitute separate contracts of life insurance. If the insurer can treat your cover separately, it can choose to apply any one of these options separately to each type of insurance. This means if you are insured for death and TPD cover, the insurer may treat your TPD cover as never having commenced but allow your death insurance cover to continue.

If you fail to provide all the information which you are required to provide (your duty of disclosure) and the failure is fraudulent, then the insurer may refuse to pay a claim and treat your insurance cover as never having commenced.
